Basketball STARS coach young teens

Corey Monroe and Greg Griffin are gigantic men – Corey is 2.10 m tall and Greg is 2.12 m! They're basketball players, and they play for a professional basketball team, the Pittsburgh Players, in Pennsylvania (US).

During the basketball season, Corey and Greg train every day and play in basketball matches once or twice a week. But this week, they are doing something very different. They are coaching young teenagers on an intensive summer basketball course in the UK. Corey explains, 'Basketball isn't a national sport in Britain, but it's becoming popular, and our camps are creating a lot of interest.'

The Pittsburgh Players Basketball Camp is for boys and girls between the ages of ten and fifteen. The camp starts at 8.30 in the morning and finishes at 5 p.m. It is open five days a week from Monday to Friday. Greg explains, 'Some of the children at the camps can already play basketball, but others can't play at all. That isn't a problem, because there are different teams and different levels.'

Laura Nolan (14) is attending the camp, and she loves it. 'It's great,' she says. 'Corey and Greg are fantastic players, and they're really good coaches, too. We're all in different teams, and I'm with four of my friends from school! Every team has a name. Ours is The Green Dragons. We're playing in a tournament today – I hope we win!'
